

You the suspect

You and your family are about to be fingerprinted, eye-scanned and tagged like criminals.

You alone will be held responsible for any incorrect data entries.

What happens to your life when the scanner fails or the bureaucrats make a mistake?

Your new papers—a new way of life

The ID Card scheme introduces a massive new privacy-busting database that will be used to track you throughout your life. The Government will control your identity. It will decide who you are. Showing ID to officials will become an everyday part of British life.

£200 for a name badge

The government admit the minimum cost of the ID scheme will be £5.5 billion, double what they said 6 months ago. That's £200 per taxpayer, enough to pay for 30 hospitals, 600 new schools or 15,000 more police. An ID card will cost you £85 when combined with your passport, with £1000+ fines for forgetting to update your details, or losing or damaging your card.

The biggest ever White Elephant

Big government computer systems are a catalogue of disaster. Over budget, late or outright failures—remember the Child Support Agency? A hundred people a month are wrongly marked as criminals because the government can't keep records properly. The ID scheme is the most complicated government IT project ever attempted and even they now admit that the technology may not work.

A tool for bullies

With a wink to racists, the Government says that ID will stop illegal immigration. But it doesn't in the rest of Europe. ID cards will create more reasons to "check" people, resulting in further discrimination and targetting of the vulnerable. How does a divided society make you safer? An abuser who gets your card holds your life in their hands.

Say NO to ID

The ID scheme is expensive and socially destructive. Either it will help make Britain a police state, or it will be a bigger white elephant than the poll tax. You can help us stop it.
